

CONGRATULATIONS ON YOUR NEW PUPPY!

The addition of a puppy to a household is an exciting event that involves many years of commitment to the future. In choosing Absecon Veterinary Hospital, your puppy will receive the benefits of expert medical care including the necessary vaccinations and preventative medications during this stage of puppyhood, as well as future care so that your pet can live a long and healthy life.

It has been shown that early training and socialization of puppies, along with seeing to their medical needs, helps to assure that they will mature into happy, well-mannered dogs that are able to be an active part of your life whether as a house pet, your child's companion, or your running partner.

Good Puppy, Great Dog Training is pleased to be a part of the Absecon Veterinary Hospital's belief that in addition to meeting the physical and health needs of your puppy, his social needs should also be met. During their first six months, puppies develop socialization skills that will affect and influence them for the rest of their lives. It is important that they experience positive interactions with other dogs and people during this time. In addition, puppies should be started on obedience exercises and good manners skills that all dogs should know.
